

RULES OF ENGAGEMENT

By Prof. Phillip Gillon

Hi, how you doing? This is Prof. Phil with Politics & Money Inc. and this, is my first attempt at writing a dialogue in pursuant to changing the way you think! I'll make it easy and fundamentally create to manifest for most, situations.

First always realize that when somebody offers you something (such as a cup of coffee or a ticket) there always stipulations that apply to both sides of the offer an agreement. So how does that affect you?

Say, your stop by the cops. The first thing most people claim is that if it's not in the law you do not have to provide identification. This maybe true but the biggest problem with a stipulation is it applies sides. So here's a few question you can ask him or her in regards to their questions:

Police Officer:

- Are you a lawyer and if not do you practice law?

(Footnote: This is an easy question because the basis of it is that they either have a claim for jurisdiction or had an order of the court by a district attorney to make such a claim or perfected agreement to act on behalf of the District Attorney's Office)

- If you are neither an attorney or represent the District Attorney's Office do you intend on for filling in the office by offering me citation, ordinance, obligation, order by the court or a law in which you intend on using for the benefit of the state?

(Footnote: Remembered that you're in a dialogue with someone that claims to have a contractor obligation against you for the benefit of his/her creditor: the institution he/she works for, his or her allegiance to the contract in which they are pledged by their employer, etc)

Judge:

- *he/she asks your name or simple Question* Answer: Ma'am/Sir is that a legal question?

(Footnote: You are being 'grafted' at this time. Grafted it really means he/she's assessing whether or not you're legally competent and can stand trial and/or has a legal position to answer questions and of sound mind. They can not Practice law from the bench yet, they have to have a bar card and associates degree along with a licence to Practice law which makes your job, VERY EASY!)

- *question* Your general answer should be: If that isn't a legal question and you're not a lawyer then you are not practicing the law is that correct?
- If that is correct I'd like to take my negotiation up with the district attorneys office.

(Footnote: The cute thing about negotiating with a judge is that, he/she's not there to negotiate for either party! Here are questions, you should ask him/her)

- What laws, that I am entitled to and are there any obligations of the constitution upon this court as the state of _____ has the obligations to pledge me the same?
- Can I offer my constitutional rights, as part of my argument if not what statute stipulates that I cannot?
- The statute provided in this claim (read the statute out loud) has been passed by legislative body. Is this statute for fundraising purposes and if it does the District Attorney's Office (turn and ask him/her this question!) is offered a redemption upon conviction and giving grant money of the Criminal Justice Act as pledged to continue the prosecution for the state and the courts beneficiaries?
- Sir Ma'am (to the judge) are you holding an office and which you were voted in or pointed?

(Footnote: This is something that's so important that when you go down to the board of elections you'll be able to find out if that judge was appointed or if that judge was appointed or elected!)

This was just a means to manifesting the very things and ideas to ensure a proper victory!
